Never having met "DiMo", I'm in uncharted territory trying to express the feelings this tragedy evokes. Seeing how great a friend he was to my son Will, and having Will share with me so much of his humor, intelligence, and zest for life, I can't help but feel loss. My prayers, and those of many in my circle, are with all of you. That said, two days ago I heard a beautiful thought shared by someone, who was also grieving, that I believe also applies here... DeMo was not someone who was taken from us... DeMo was someone who was given to us... and we are all the richer for it... God Bless you and everyone important to you... Bill Casey (Will's Dad)

Dear Steve & Darlene, Whenever I think back to the St. Edward class of 2015--which is often, for they are one of my all-time favorite classes--Nick is the student who first comes to mind as being so full of life, hope, passion, & excitement, as well as compassion for those less fortunate. He was quick-witted & uncannily intuitive with a knack for picking up patterns missed by some of his sharpest peers & for picking up the spirits of anyone who was feeling down. He had a heart of gold & was the most loving kid on the planet. Having a surprise visit this past winter from him & Nathan Schuckman really made my day. I just got the news & so, while still reeling from it myself, reach out to you with an embrace today. Please accept my shock, my deepest sympathies, & my prayers at this challenging time & let me know what I can do to support your family & to honor his memory. Requiescat in pace Nicholas noster carissimus. Lots of love, Daniel J. Cavoli St. Edward High School

There are just so many stories...Steves lists when you went away with work for all Nicks activities and school schedules. The house being a little untidy when you got back. You, Darlene, explaining the seasons as you do and Nick saying at the end you could have just said Fall (always makes me smile)! When Nick left for university and us saying how fast the time will fly by (it really did). I love hearing everyone and there are soo many.
