Gabe was someone I looked up to a lot growing up. He was very funny with a kind heart, and I used to hope to impress him with my newfound taste in music. But he meant a lot to me, despite growing apart. He struggled with so much and I very much admired the strength he had to fight the challenges in his life. I pray for him to be at peace now, with Grandpa Tony and in Heaven. We love you Gabe, and we all miss you, now and forever.

Gabe was a strong person who had been through so much in his life, and it's heartbreaking that he left the world at such a young age. We might not have had the closest relationship as adults, but I grew up with him and have countless memories of playing and goofing off with him when we were kids. I'm going to miss Gabe so much, but I'm happy I had been able to share the moments I did with him.

This is Ian.Gabe and I used to play the Call of Duty demo when we were little, with one of us controlling the keyboard and one of us controlling the mouse. We'd switch back and forth, too.While that doesn't seem like a practical way to play video games, it was still fun to be hanging out and spending time with my cousin.I'll make sure to tell my kids that their uncle was also a better skateboarder than I'll ever be.I love you, man.
